

My first reaction to hearing about Dr. Racine and his upper cervical practice was. “What do I want with another doctor?”

So, I read the material and went to a lecture and thought it actually sounds too good to be true. I skeptically made an appointment. After all I have been under some doctor’s care for lumbar scoliosis since I was 6 years old and for various other maladies along the way, so what a difference will one more doctor make!

Five years ago I became one of allopathic medicine’s casualties. I briefly saw one neurologist who told me that I could drive my car as long as I didn’t drive into much traffic, an orthopedist, neuropsychologist, gastroenterologist, ENT balance specialist, endocrinologist, pain specialist and internist and going for the prescribed rehabilitative therapies 5 days a week for almost two years. This was the result of being assaulted by an autistic client, and suffering post concussive disorder, PTSD (post traumatic stress disorder) with accompanying depression and other bodily injuries. The most aggravating was the reoccurring loss of balance, constant blurred vision, trigeminal nerve pain in my head, face and neck, and the inability to keep my head up for a period of time without feeling like it was going to fall off my neck. The rest of the pain and discomfort in my body, and periods of confusion I learned to live with. Needless to say, having run the gamut of doctors and being told to learn to live with it, I was not coming to Dr. Racine with any great expectations.

Much to my delight, I found a very caring and compassionate doctor who took the time to listen to me and even believed me. And what was even better, SECONDS after the first treatment, for the first time in almost 5 years I was able to see without feeling like I was looking through a screen. It was absolutely remarkable. That was 4 months ago. I’m one of the tougher cases because I had lots of insults to my body, and lived for sixty years with nerve deprivation due to the atlas not being in place and scoliosis of the spine. BUT, I am getting better and better. I am no longer an uncontrolled diabetic. I have not needed insulin since my first treatment, and am taking a minimal dosage of oral medication. My vision has only blurred when my head didn’t hold the treatment. My head no longer feels like a bowling ball waiting to topple off my neck. All else is gradually improving and I am not in constant pain.

Best of all, God has given me a doctor that takes the time to call me at home to make sure that I am all right, and he actually answers and returns a phone call!

I highly encourage people to undergo treatment with Dr. Racine.
